

Executive Education & Board Briefings

Custom, board-level briefings that turn complex supply-chain dynamics into clear strategic choices.

Boards rarely fail because they lack information — they fail because supply-chain risk is discussed in operational language, at the wrong level, too late. This briefing gives leadership teams, non-executives, and policy stakeholders a shared, board-level understanding of where their biopharma value-chain is genuinely vulnerable, grounded in real cases and your own data.

What the briefing covers

- Where the value-chain is genuinely vulnerable — single points of failure, CDMO concentration, and geopolitical exposure
- What credible de-risking requires at board level, not just in operations
- How to align investment priorities, redundancy, and risk appetite across the leadership team
- Case studies from real engagements, tailored to your own value-chain data

Format

- Half-day or full-day session for the board, executive team, or non-executives
- A short preparatory call to tailor content to your current pressure points
- Delivered in person or virtually, in the UK, EU, or US

Led by

Hedley Rees

Managing Consultant, PharmaFlow

40+ years in pharma manufacturing, outsourcing, and policy. Author of Transforming the Pharmaceutical Supply Chain (Wiley, 2025). Former advisor to Lonza, Catalent, Oxford BioMedica, Tower Cold Chain, Marken, and UPS Healthcare.

Dr Angeliki Kotsianti

Consultant, Medical Governance & Regulatory Strategy

Physician-scientist; 19 years at Pfizer holding final medical judgement on recall, reformulation, and supply decisions. Built Pfizer's global Medically Necessary Products strategy and co-led its EU Critical Medicines Alliance representation.

Typical outcomes

- Shared language across the board on supply-chain risk
- Sharper strategic questions from non-executives
- Alignment on investment priorities for the next 6–18 months
- A concrete, prioritised action list

Ready to raise the level of your board's supply-chain conversation?

pharmaflowltd.com

Bridgend, Wales – working across the UK, EU, and US. Enquiries: Hedley Rees. Book a 30-minute exploratory call